6.5.1 IQAC Contribution: Training and Placement Cell

The activities of the Training and Placement Cell, which are beneficial for improving students' skill sets in group discussions, seminars, career counseling, preparing for aptitude exams, carrying out placement-related activities, etc., are overseen by IQAC. The Central Placement Cell (CPC) Dean oversees the training and placement cell, which also has an institute-level training and placement officer that works with different department-level faculty coordinators to coordinate its operations. Every department student registers with the cell for training and placement. The cell administers employability exams (ET) to prepare students for placements. Students are placed on a short list based on their ET score and the company's requirements. To improve employable skills, the institute offers students a variety of training in areas such logical thinking, verbal, soft skills, domain-specific training, and numeric aptitude. In order to prepare students for the workforce, both internal faculty members and outside training specialists teach them in a variety of subjects.
