Activity Report

Description of activity in brief:

Mr. Shrikant focused on matching one's abilities, interests, and long term objectives with opportunities that exist in many domains such as government, business, academia, and charitable organizations in the field of research. He highlighted on establishing a solid track record through publications, grants and honing soft and technical skills like communication, teamwork, and data analysis which are important milestones. He added, industry places more emphasis on useful ideas, while academia offers intellectual independence at the cost of competition. In this fast-paced and cutthroat industry, networking, mentoring, and ongoing skill development are essential for job growth.
